This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Report of the State Librarian of Virginia.

RICHMOND, November 1, 1905.

To the State Library Board of Virginia:

GENTLEMEN.

I have the honor to transmit the first annual report of the Department of Archives and History, for the year ended October 31, 1905.

In the preparation of this work the services of the Assistant Librarian, Mr. E. S. Evans, were largely expended. This efficient officer was detailed for the specific duty of ascertaining the true condition of the state and county records, and to set forth in a clear and concise manner such facts concerning record depositories as could be secured.

This service and all other contributions to this report have been made in a most scholarly manner, and each section is respectfully submitted as worthy of commendation.

Especial attention is drawn to the section of this report which sets forth in calendar form the various trancsripts on file in this library. It is due to the untiring energy of Andrew C. McLaughlin, formerly of the Carnegie Institution, that the State is enabled at this time to bring this splendid collection of papers into a condition of usefulness and permanent value.

Messrs. W. G. Leland and J. H. Russell, acting under Dr. McLaughlin's instructions, have produced exceptionally clear work, as did Mr. F. B. Berkeley, one of my associates, who epitomized volumes 7, 8, and 9 of the Sainsbury Papers.

Attention is also directed to the excellent manner in which Mrs. Kate Pleasants Minor, acting Chief of the Serials Division, arranged the title entries of all bound volumes of manuscripts herein recorded.

In transmitting this report, which embodies the entire collection of manuscripts in the library that are in bound form, it is with decided satisfaction that progress can be reported in the classifying and cataloguing of the enormous collection of loose manuscripts on file in this office.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN P. KENNEDY,

STATE LIBRARIAN

DIVISION OF ARCHIVES AND HISTORY

HON. JOHN P. KENNEDY,
STATE LIBRARIAN,
RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR SIR:

In accordance with your request, I have prepared and submit herewith the report of the Division of Archives and History for the year ended October 31, 1905.

Before dealing directly with the work of the Division, there are a few important facts relating to manuscripts in Virginia which should be touched upon.

It is probable that Virginia is richer in original sources of history than any other state in America.

During the Colonial and later periods her sons took the lead in many history-making events and their opinions upon every conceivable subject in politics and statescraft are preserved in letters, diaries and other manuscripts.

The Archives of the State, with one or two notable gaps, have been preserved intact and are now in the State Library. These papers, however, outside of the Legislative and Executive manuscripts, consist only of documents and letters relating to such undertakings as came into official relations with the State, e. g., Lewis and Clarke expedition, John Brown insurrection, etc.

Hundreds of documents which are of as vital importance to the student of Virginia history as those now in the possession of the State are in the hands of private parties, the descendants, often of the prominent men of our early days, who in many instances value them highly and have preserved them with the greatest care. It is to such men as these that the Virginia State Library owes its present rich collection of manuscripts, and their patriotism and love of family cannot be too highly commended. There are, nevertheless, many instances which might be cited, distinctly the reverse, where papers, (imperishable monuments to a great man, if properly cared for), have been sold to Northern collectors for small sums, and scattered to the four winds, destroying forever their value as a historical unity, and precluding permanently their use to the student; or even worse, if worse were possible, their total destruction by fire, disintegration, ill treatment, etc.

It was with these facts clearly outlined that it was determined to establish a Division of Archives and History. This was in fact but organizing and broadening the work already being carried on by the Library for the past year.

In the development of this department it was decided to exert every effort, first, in the cataloguing and arrangement of the manuscripts now on hand; second, to the publication of such documents as would prove of greatest value to the student and in the order of their worth; third, to the making of a complete and satisfactory bibliography of all manuscripts relating to Virginia, wheresoever they might be found, and lastly and always to devote earnest effort to the securing of all documents, letters or any other original papers whatsoever which bear either directly or indirectly upon Virginia history.

As to the first, the cataloguing has been going steadily on with the result as is shown in succeeding pages of this report.

In this work the Carnegie Institution has been of inestimable service, they having turned over the entire catalogue prepared by Messrs. W. G. Leland and J. H. Russell, who spent several months listing the transcripts, made in the London Record Office, now in the Virginia State Library.

As to the second endeavor—the publication of valuable manuscripts—the Department has undertaken the work as suggested in the "First Annual Report,"—the publication of the Journal of the House of Burgesses of Virginia, 1773-1776. This work was commenced under the direct supervision of the Librarian in January, 1905, the copy was turned over to the printers, Messrs. Everett Waddey Company, about the first of March, and the work was received, ready for distribution the first week in July.

Five hundred copies in folio, consisting of 325 pages each, were printed from old style type on heavy antique linen paper. The last page of the original Journal is reproduced as a frontispiece and the work is illustrated with cuts of the seal of the House of Burgesses, Council Chamber and Great Seal of the Colony in the time of George III.

On the first of August a contract was closed with G. P. Putnam's Sons, of New York, to act as agents for the disposal of the entire edition, relieving the Library of a tax which told heavily upon all, owing to the small force of assistants.

The work has received commendation from the best authorities all over the country and demands for further publications are being received from every quarter.

In the further pursuit of this work it has been determined to publish the Journals of the House of Burgesses of Virginia in a retrograde order, the next to go to the press being for the years 1769-1772, and so on back to 1619. This will include the documents now in the London Record Office, which have never before been transcribed for historians.

The third proposition which engaged attention was the preparation of a bibliography of manuscripts and original material relating to Virginia, and this work is now in progress with fairly good results already accomplished. Considerable time was spent in Washington, D. C., in an endeavor to create a check-list of Virginia manuscripts there.

The last and one of the most important of the undertakings of the Department is the procuring, for better preservation, all original material lying within the State or elsewhere.

As a country develops in material and intellectual strength it becomes its duty to preserve the history of its progress, which can only be done through the records of the individuals who were the factors in its growth.

Lacking funds for traveling expenses and being greatly handicapped by want of assistants, the work has nevertheless met with pleasing success.

One hundred and sixty odd persons have been written to, and the responses have shown a love for the State most commendable, and many valuable collections have been promised and several have been received.

But one most lamentable fact has been emphasized by the correspondence, and that is the number of valuable papers of this character missing. Nine county courts report total or partial loss of papers by fire, three more report destruction by war. A splendid private collection in Staunton was lost by fire, as were also collections in Bedford and Hanover. A collection of Madison papers were destroyed in the same manner.

Many excellent collections bearing upon important events and persons in Virginia history have been sold, either through ignorance, carelessness or stress of circumstances which can never be secured or replaced. This deplorable loss to the Commonwealth has been occasioned by men who impose on the people, paying mere pittances for papers which are the only monuments now existing to the achievements of their ancestors, or records valuable only in their unity as a collection. As soon as procured these letters and documents are sold at an advance price to autograph collectors and others out of the State, who refuse absolutely to allow students access to the papers and charge exhorbitant prices where they consent to part with any of their collection.

Past experience shows us that it is only through personal solicitation that the best results can be obtained. Those parties who were seen in person much more readily presented their papers to the State, for safe-keeping than those merely corresponded with.

Virginians, here and elsewhere, are requested to aid the Library by furnishing information relative to original material, letters, diaries, writings of any kind which can throw light on the history of our Commonwealth or any of her sons, that an endeavor may be made to secure the same for preservation in the State Library, which is a fire-proof building, and where the papers will receive the care of experts, insuring them permanent existence and making them readily accessible to the student.

It is most earnestly recommended that the Legislature make provision for a thoroughly capable expert to take charge of this Division and devote his entire time to the promotion of the work as set forth above; that his salary be fixed at twelve hundred dollars per annum, and that the Library be furnished with such funds as are necessary for railroad fare and extra expenses incurred in the procuring of historical and valuable papers.

The vast amount of transcription necessary in the preparation of the copy for the printer demands that another typist be secured, who can devote his entire time to this work and relieve the present stenographer of some of that burden already large and ever increasing.

ARCHIVES AND MANUSCRIPTS IN THE VIRGINIA STATE LIBRARY

The act reorganizing the State Library in accordance with the provisions of the new Constitution placed in the keeping of the Library Board certain State records which were then in the custody of the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

In 1901 one thousand dollars was appropriated for the purpose of arranging in chronological order the archives in the State Library, and Mr. T. E. Nimmo was appointed to do the work, under the supervison of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and continued arranging these papers under the new regime, until the first of August, 1904. The total number of boxes being 3,543, and roughly estimating the member of documents at fifty to the box, we have 177,150 individual manuscripts. This is a very conservative estimate.

The bound manuscripts have been arranged under a preliminary classification of—

Council
House of Burgesses
House of Delegates
Executive
Army and Navy
Auditors' Accounts
Transcripts from County Records
Transcripts of Papers in the British Record Office.

There are many volumes of important papers missing, including Journals of the House of Burgesses from 1619 to 1769 (except one volume of the Journals 1692-1693) making a gap of one hundred and fifty years. These papers cover the entire period when Virginia was involved in her epoch-making struggle for life and liberty, and it will be interesting to look back and see how the losses occurred which have deprived Virginia of some of her most valuable sources of history.

In the early days of our history most, if not all, of the important records were in the custody of two State Officers: One, the Secretary of the Colony (whose offices corresponded to the two offices of Clerk and the General Court, and Register of the Land Office), and the other the Clerk of the House of Burgesses. The former kept all the Executive and Judicial records, and the latter those appertaining to the Legislature. Very lax methods were employed and immense masses of matter were thrown together without regard to any sort of order. Hening, the compiler of the Statutes at Large, says "Perhaps in no civilized country whatever were the records so badly arranged and kept as in the former Secretary's office of Virginia." The disadvantages of this condition of the records at last inspired the Assembly in 1664 to pass an act (Hening II, 10) entitled "An Act concerning the regulating the Secretary's Office," stating that it "Appears that there hath been a greate neglect in keeping the records in this country," and appointing the Clerk of the House and two Members "to examine and state the records as they now are; and for the future soe soone as there is a place convenient to receive them noe person may have a view of them (unless upon public order) but the Clerke of the Office or whom else the Secretary shall appoint."

It seems to have been a practice among the Clerks in the Secretary's Office to record papers in the first book which came to hand, and Hening calls our attention to Will Book No. 2, where an entire copy of the proceedings of the Court Martial held by Sir William Berkeley for the trial of persons who adhered to Bacon, and other extraneous matter was found. This carelessness on the part of the Clerks was the cause of the loss of many land patents which, being recorded in books labeled "Bonds, Commissions, Depositions, etc." were carried to the General Court and there destroyed in the fire of 1865. (Hening 1. 509.)

The records certainly suffered from the several conflagrations at Jamestown. The documents seem to have been saved from fire in 1676 by one of Bacon's adherents, when he destroyed the town, and at the following session of the Assembly they were ordered to be conveyed to the Secretary's Home at Richs Neck for safe keeping. (Hening 11, 404).

They probably again escaped the fire of 1698, though Stanard in his "Virginia Archives" calls our attention to a clause in an act which authorizes the revisers to send for any "papers, records, or copies of records * * * to all persons having any manuscripts, papers or records relating to the first settlements of this country," showing that the records were not considered complete.

In 1748, after the Capitol was removed to Williamsburg, another disastrous fire occurred and though there is nothing definite to go upon, it is thought that it was at this fire that the Journals of the House of Burgesses were all destroyed, only one manuscript journal, 1692–3, as before mentioned, having been preserved.

Richmond had been the Capitol but one year, when in December, 1780, Benedict Arnold, with British troops, raided it.

In order to save the State records they were put into carts and hurried in greatest confusion toward the mountains. Numbers of papers were scattered along the way and when at last they were returned to the infant Capital, many gaps never again to be filled, had been made.

To-day it may be noted that many interesting and valuable documents are missing, the wrappers alone remaining to testify to their erstwhile existence.

1865 marks the date most disastrous in the history of the records. The capitol was invaded by Federal troops and many papers owe their destruction to prying soldiers. It is probable that many empty wrappers can be accounted for in this manner. But the most terrible loss by far was caused by the burning of the General Court, on April 3d. During this conflagration were destroyed records which had survived all the vicissitudes of two hundred and fifty years. Among these were several wagon-loads of historic old documents, including land patents, wills, marriage and other records, which to-day would prove invaluable to the historian and the genealogist.

Since 1865 the losses have been numerous. Mr. Palmer, in his introduction to the first volume of the Calendar of Virginia State Papers, tells us that not many years before the writing of that work (1881) invaluable documents were seen in the Capitol which had since disappeared. Among them he mentions a land patent to Lord Fairfax bearing Royal sign Manual; Intructions from the Privy Council to Colonial Governors, bearing impressions of their Great Seals; and an original draft of a solemn protest against the lately revealed machinations of the Papists and Jacobins by which the person and throne of William III seemed to be endangered. This was signed by most of the House of Burgesses and by leading Gentry, pledging themselves, their fortunes and their sacred honours to support the House of Orange against the enemies of England and the Protestant faith (dated about 1696), and many others as valuable and rare.

Within the last few years the manuscripts have been under the supervision of the Library Board and they have been kept under lock and key, only such persons as were known to be responsible being allowed access to them and then such precautions being taken as would insure them against misplacement or destruction.

The "vertical filing" system has been installed and the work of refiling the manuscripts has been commenced. Each individual paper receives a heavy manilla wrapper and is filed under its own catalogue number in one of these filing cases.

The Journals of the Council Chamber of Virginia have been preserved in greater number in this Library than those of the House of Burgesses. This series of papers is unquestionably the most valuable Historical source known to students of Virginia History, and with the records of that body in the London Record Office it will be possible to transcribe the minutes of many sessions not now recorded in America.

The Council of Virginia was organized under "Letters Patent to Sir Thomas Gates, Sir George Somers and others, for two several Colonies and plantations to be made in Virginia, and other parts and territories in America," issued by James I, and bearing date of April 10th, 1606—[Hening, 1. page 60, Vol. VII.]

The earliest Journal of this body known to students bears the title "Journal of Council and Assembly, 1626–1634." This manuscript, which is frequently alluded to as the Edmund Randolph manuscript, is in the Library of Congress.

In June, 1680, the Council discontinued their session with the Assembly, holding separate and distinct meetings thereafter. Aside from the Journals in the Library of Congress, no records have been found for the period between that date and 1692, the date of the earliest Journal in the Virginia State Library. An effort is now being made, however, to ascertain the number of Journals of the Council that are deposited in the London Record Office, and it is believed that several missing records will be obtained as a result thereof.

HOUSE OF BURGESSES OF VIRGINIA

During the latter part of June, 1619, the Assembly of Virginia was called by Sir George Yeardley, to meet at Jamestown. This body was elected by the various townships, no county lines having been established at that time.

The Journal of the first session of this Assembly, which convened on July 30, 1619, is on file in the London Record Office. In 1856, George Bancroft, in an introduction to the records of this Assembly, states that with the aid of intelligent men employed in the London Record Office he was so fortunate as to obtain copies of the proceedings of this body.

This introduction was published by the State of Virginia in 1874 in a book entitled "Colonial Records of Virginia." Many other things published in this work were the records of this Assembly under the following title:

> "A REPORTE of the manner of proceedings in the Genera! assembly convented at James citty in Virginia, July 30, 1619, consisting of the Govenor, the Counsell of Estate and two Burgesses elected out of eache Incorporation and Plantation, and being dissolved the 4th of August next ensuing."

The full contents of this publication is given in the following list of Journals of the House of Burgesses on file in Virginia State Library.

So far as is known, no Journals of the House of Burgesses between 1619-1685 are in America. In the report of the American Historical Association, 1897, pages 432-436, a report, prepared by Miss E. B. Sainsbury, of these Journals from 1680-1732 was made. Similar reports from the London Record Office covering that period indicate that the dates and designations as outlined by Miss Sainsbury are correct in every respect. The list, however, as continued from the period which Miss Sainsbury's research ended, contains several errors, and is therefore useless as a check-list of this material.

With the advent of the publication of these Journals of the House of Burgesses the purpose of the State of Virginia is to have a careful examination made of all papers in the London Record Office between the years 1619-1685 in order to ascertain definitely whether or not the records of the House of Burgesses for that time are to be found there. This search will then be continued up to 1769 and transcripts made of such records as are needed to complete the file owned by the State.

COUNTY RECORDS

No more valuable records can be found than those preserved by the County Courts. Consisting of deeds, wills, orders, depositions and other local information, they give, not only most valuable data relative to Virginia history, but offer the unparalleled advantage of giving the local "color" and "atmosphere" of the periods whose records they register.

To the County Court was originally entrusted the judicial conduct of affairs; and at times it succeeded to many of the functions of the General Court and other tribunals of Oyer and Terminer, when, as the limits of the Colony expanded, it became necessary to furnish the increasing population with convenient centres of jurisdiction.

The members of this Court were men of great influence and power and so wide and multifarious were the functions of the Courts over which they sat that there was no station in business, military of domestic life, some phase of which will not be treated of in these records. They have, however, suffered greatly in the past from the carelessness of the County Clerks, fire (of which numerous instances are mentioned by Hening) and from the vandalism and pilfering of hostile troops.

Mr. S. S. P. Patteson, Member of the Library Board, in a resolution before the Virginia Bar Association, gives a very clear picture of the present condition of these records; he says:

"The few surviving County records of Virginia for the "Seventeenth Century are incomparably the most valuable in existence for the light which they throw on the early administration of justice, and the origin and condition of her colonial forefathers, whether social, religious, political or economical.

"A large number of these ancient records are now in the state of tattered and mutilated volumes, without any backs, and fast becoming illegible by the fading of the handwriting and the decay of the paper from age and neglect.

"In some of the County Clerk's Offices, largely owing to the entire lack of proper mechanical facilities, these priceless volumes are left like so much useless rubbish to rust in the thick dust on the tops of book cases and shelves, or lie in piles upon the floor, exposed to constant dampness and depradations of insects and other vermin, which will soon destroy what has escaped the corruption of time."

In order to furnish some idea of the condition of the records in the different Counties as regards their completeness, the data has been tabulated, Stanard's "Virginia Archives" being used as a basis to work from, corrections being made from more complete information in possession of the Library.

TRANSCRIPTS MADE FROM ORIGINAL PAPERS IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE, LONDON

The destruction of so many of the early records makes those preserved in the British Record Office doubly valuable. From time to time, since 1826, transcripts have been made by Jared Sparks and others for the Virginia State Library of the more valuable records on file in that Office, including records concerning the Virginia-North Carolina Boundary line, Journals of the Council, Burgesses, etc.

The following calendar of these transcripts which has been made by Messrs. W. G. Leland and J. H. Russell, under the direct supervision of Andrew C. McLaughlin, of the Carnegie Institution, covers the period between 1606-1772.

SAINSBURY ABSTRACTS

MISCELLANEOUS, 1706–1720

Transcribed by William Noel Sainsbury for the Library Committee of Virginia. Under contract made in 1873, the Compiler was to furnish copies of all titles and copious abstracts of every paper concerning Virginia Colonial History that had been unearthed up to that time in the London Record Office. Mr. Sainsbury, in reporting on this work, asserts that as near as possible the contract was carried into effect. Since that time, however, many valuable papers bearing directly upon Virginia have been located in that Office, and it is the purpose of the State to resume the work as soon as possible, commencing with the Journals of the House of Burgesses covering the period between 1680–1732.

A CHECK LIST OF VIRGINIANA IN OTHER DEPARTMENTS OF THE STATE AND NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

The following records which are located in the Virginia Land Office, the Virginia Historical Society, the various Departments in Washington and in the London Record Office, supply much of interest to the Students of Virginia History.

The State Land Office.

The records of this office, though having suffered, as before noted, in the burning of the old Court House in 1865, are still fairly complete from 1623 to date, and form the foundation for most of the titles to property in Virginia, and a large part of those in West Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio.

The unbound material is tied up in packages, some fifteen hundred in number, representing original military land bounty warrants of the French and Indian and Revolutionary Wars, with the original certificates of service of officers and soldiers. These packages also include some copies of wills, "proof of heirship," etc., which are filed with the land bounty claims, and letters relative to land titles and patents, many of which are autographs of men of note in our early history.

The following is a complete inventory of the records in the Land Office:

Patent Books, 1623-1774. Forty-three Volumes.
Grant Books, 1779-1786. Twenty-five Volumes.
Grant Books, 1787 to date. One hundred and twenty-two Volumes.

Original Surveys for Northern Neck Lands 1779 to date.

Virginia Historical Society.

For many years the Virginia Historical Society has been slowly accumulating material of historical interest to the State. The Society's valuable collection it is hoped will be housed in the near future in a more suitable building, one that is fire proof and convenient.

A catalogue of the manuscripts in the Virginia Historical Society has been compiled by the order of its Executive Committee under the title: "Catalogue of the Manuscripts in the Collection of the Virginia Historical Society."
